Catholic and Friend(s)

Despite being an interdenominational Christian liberal arts college, we only managed to enroll a single Catholic - but she has many friends!!

Chess Club

Literally the only reason why I still attend this school. Come play me in the library, I work at the help desk from 7-10pm most Tuesdays-Thursdays.

Feminist Society

Working to put men in their biblical place. Where is that place? Depends on if you're an egalitarian or a complementarian, and the Feminist Club has accommodations for both. For complementarians, there is a man on the board; but don't worry egalitarians, he's only the Vice President. This is your once-in-a-lifetime chance to see complementarians advocating for gender quotas in leadership. For more information, come to a women-only info session.

The Horizon

The only student organization that doesn't have colored graduation sashes.

N-STEP

Our school's most talented dance team. They practice every day in the Room of Requirements (racketball courts) and hang out in a clique wearing matching logo'd sweatpants and hoodies. We always look forward to their one performance per year where they dance to Lecrae or provocative songs we can't hear at school dances.

Unwary freshmen lured into overcommitment by being forced out of the DC.

Polo (Men)

The most successful sports team on campus that no one has ever heard of. Comprised of members all from a single family, this team has managed to consistently win the last seven national championships beating equestrian breeding schools such as University of Virginia, Cornell, and Stanford.

Spectrum

Oops... I mean ... err... never mind...

Ultimate Frisbee: Westmont Wildfire

Tastefully named after the culprit of one of Westmont's greatest tragedies, this team is led by the librarians' favorite student.

Veritas

As cloaked meninists, this group is comfortable enough within their own Christian masculine identity to choose the pagan goddess of truth and virginity as their mascot. Though this is the club's official pilot year, they have been around underground for decades. I know this because over my four years attending Westmont, I have never had to stand up in the shuttle, or open my own door.

Water Polo

These athletes are playing for the love of the game in our intentionally undersized swimming pool.

WCSA

Figureheads with no real power - but for real, who are they, and what do they actually do? What does that acronym stand for?

Poll: Which 2016-2017 Student Handbook Policy Is Fake?

- a. No drone use allowed.
- b. Hoverboards are banned, violation will result in a $50 fine.
- c. Cuddling or lying in bed together is "unacceptable," but maybe still legal?
- d. Students' failure to learn proper rhythm and tempo for the clapping part of "In The Sanctuary" will result in mandatory practices with the Chapel Office.

Answer: D

Meet Your Editors

BY ANNALIESE YUKAWA AND KATIE SWALM
Capstone Co-Editors

Annaliese Yukawa and Katie Swalm here! We are truly delighted to be your Capstone Co-Editors. Below, we have provided you a list of reasons why you're stuck with us all year:

Annaliese

- After eight years on student government, I hit my term limit and had to step down. (If you want to know the real story behind my political career, I ran for student government because I was rejected from an minimum wage Risk Management position and had nothing more to lose)
- One of my greatest fears is having my work published because if I write something stupid:
 - a. it is immortalized in print for all to see
 - b. there is literally nothing I can do about it
 - c. I guess this isn't an actual reason, just a fun fact

Katie

- Made my mom laugh one time
- Character reference: many would describe as "nice but vaguely disappointing" or "who?"
- Though in senior year, mostly resisting the urge to form a superiority complex
- Took this job in defiance of the unstoppable tide of youth culture which will soon render twenty-some things "uncool" and "irrelevant"
- After working for the Horizon for three years and never making the front page, excited for the fame and fortune of the Capstone
- Ryan Lochte is the worst

Though often viewed lightly, humor has an important place within campus culture - it functions as a mechanism to discuss salient ideas, and bonds people over the shared experiences and quirks of our environment. However, writing about important issues has a higher risk of offending people. As your editors, we want to make engaging and entertaining comments, in a respectful, fair, and non-isolating way, on the idiosyncrasies of campus (and wider society).

Though you had absolutely no choice in the hiring process, thanks for reading the Capstone, and we hope you enjoy! (For hate mail, job offers, or fun facts about animals, please use box #2070, #2212, or #1442, or slide into our DMs @WestmontHorizon). If you actually read this whole thing, drop us a line and we will put a special surprise in your mailbox!
